HUNSICKER WINS IMPORTANT ROLE

Assemblyman to Serve Head of One Branch of Finance Committee

Clark Hunsicker, W. Union street, took a leading role in the makeup of the new legislature, Wednesday, when he was appointed chairman of the general section of the finance committee.

Mr. Hunsicker served as a finance committee member last term, his first in the house.

Other finance division chairmen are Ralph Lutz, of Richland county, in charge of education financing, and Grover Maxwell, of Defiance county, in charge of welfare financing.

In addition to the finance committee position, Mr. Hunsicker has been appointed to the federal relations and the organization of state government committees.

All of the 27 chairmanships were given to Democrats.

For the first time in legislative history in Ohio the important committee on taxation will be headed by a woman, Miss Ruth Lloyd, Scioto county. Miss Lloyd is serving her second term in the house.

She was a member and secretary of the taxation committee during the prolonged sessions of the last legislature, during 1935-1936.

The important position as chairman of the finance committee was given to Al Kalb, of Ottawa county. Kalb, a third-termist, is a fruit buyer and farmer, living at Port Clinton.

The road will be graded, drained, and resurfaced with asphalt.

Many accidents have occurred on the stretch in recent months. The work is expected to start before Feb. 1.

Approximately $200,000 will be spent in Fayette county for improvement of 2.43 miles starting 5.5 miles from Washington C. H. and extending into New Holland.

The work would include a new bridge to replace the 96-year-old covered structure, one of the last of its kind in central Ohio.

A total of $9,125,460 will be spent on 60 projects in 51 counties, highway officials have disclosed. Half of the money is furnished by the government and the other half by the state.

The proposal to name Route 22 the Sherman highway, in honor of General William Tecumseh Sherman, native of Lancaster, is gaining speed. Fairfield counties, who are sponsoring the suggestion, are planning to visit various cities along the highway to seek support.

WASHINGTON C. H., Jan. 6.—(UP)—James I. Cadwallader, 74, newspaper publisher and former school superintendent, died at Magnetic Springs yesterday.

He had retired last September as publisher and secretary-treasurer of the Washington News Publishing Co. and business manager of the Record-Republican.

He formerly was superintendent of schools at Leesburg and Greenfield and was first Clinton county school superintendent. He also had been connected with Blanchester schools.

Boy Swallows Safety Pin, But No Damage Is Done

George Boyssel, 9-year-old Jackson township third grade pupil, had an exciting experience Wednesday morning, although the results will not be serious.

The youngster swallowed a safety pin. He believed it was open. Hurried to the office of Dr. E. S. Shane by Supt. Robert Terhune, the youth was placed under a fluoroscope which showed the pin was lodged in his stomach. It was closed, Dr. Shane, reported, and could not have been open when swallowed.

Anyway the boy is relieved.

RETAILERS URGE STORES TO CLOSE SATURDAY AT 9:30

The Retail Merchants' association heard reports of successful Christmas business and made plans for additional promotion, Tuesday evening when many of the members gathered.

The holiday sales program, which resulted in many persons receiving prizes offered by merchants, left the association $117.40 in its treasury. This money will be used for additional projects.

A resolution asking all business houses to close their doors at 9:30 p. m. each Saturday during January and February was approved. Business houses signing the association's agreement to close at that hour include Crist Department store, Mason Brothers, Cussins & Fearn, Griffith and Martin, Fashion Store, Stevenson's Furniture, Inc., Circleville Furniture Co., Joseph's store, Stuffer's store, Grant store, J. C. Penney Co., Murphy's, Caddy Miller, and Western Auto Supply.

A publicity committee comprised of Harry Steinhauer, Fred Mills and Joe Burns was appointed by Nathan Groban, chairman of the Retailers'.

STATE APPOINTS MCCRADY COUNTY ROAD ENGINEER

Henry T. McCrady, E. Mill street, was notified by the state highway department Tuesday afternoon of his appointment as Pickaway county resident engineer.

Mr. McCrady, former deputy engineer under Howard Sweetman, was recently voted the support of the county Democratic executive committee. The position was formerly held by Mr. Sweetman along with his other duties.

The resident engineer has charge of all state highway work in this county. His office will be in the county engineer's department at the courthouse.

HOUSE TO RUSH ARMS EMBARGO

McReynolds Heads Drive to Stop Shipments to Civil War in Spain

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(UP)—Chairman Sam D. McReynolds of the house foreign affairs committee launched an emergency drive today for immediate passage to halt shipment of arms to Spain.

McReynolds announced he would seek unanimous consent for the house to take up at noon today his emergency neutrality resolution, drafted in an effort to prevent shipment of arms now being loaded for Spain.

The same resolution will be introduced in the senate today where a similar effort for unprecedented speed in passage will be attempted.

The emergency tactics were adopted after it was revealed that arms are now being loaded aboard a freighter in New York harbor with the prospect of additional imminent shipments authorized in licenses issued by the state department last night.

Under the new program, house passage of the arms ban will be sought even before President Roosevelt presents his annual state-of-the-nation address at 2 p. m. He is expected to emphasize necessity of quick action in his address.

CHURCH ELECTS OFFICIALS AND FOUR DELEGATES

All wardens and vestrymen who served during the last year were re-elected when the annual meeting of St. Philip's Episcopal church was held Tuesday evening.

They include James Swearingen, senior warden; Grant Swearingen, junior warden; C. T. Gilmore, L. J. Johnson, Shirley Dreisbach, Russell Inler, Harry Johnson, Mrs. Harry Lewis, Mrs. Howard B. Moore, and Mrs. William Caskey. Reports of the secretary and treasurer and of parish organizations were heard and all officers and women of the church were thanked for their efforts during the year. The women contributed more than $400 to the work of the church.

Delegates and alternates to the convention of the diocese in Columbus Jan. 26 and 27 include: Dreisbach, John Bolender, Shirley Dreisbach, Mrs. Fred Donnelly and Mrs. William Caskey; alternates, Charles E. Roof, Jr., Arthur Johnson, Mrs. John Bolender, and Miss Janet Sweetman.

Cemetery's Dead Pass Circleville Population

Forest cemetery's population exceeds that of Circleville.

During 1936 there were 161 burials in the cemetery, one more than in 1935, E. O. Crites, superintendent, announced Wednesday. There are approximately 9,000 buried in the cemetery. Mr. Crites explained the average burials in recent years is about 140. The record year was 1918 when 238 burials were made. The flu epidemic hit Circleville in that year.

Stockholders of the Forest cemetery association will hold their annual meeting Jan. 19 at 7:30 p. m. in the courthouse. Annual reports will be given, elected and a director will be named to succeed Harvey Heffner, deceased. Officers for 1937 will be elected.

The body was removed to the Mader funeral home. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Staiger was the widow of John Staiger. There were no children.

She suffered a fractured right leg, broken collarbone and bruises. She was crossing the street to spend the evening with friends when she was struck by an auto, police said was driven by John Johnson, of 2211 Arlington avenue, Middletown, O.

JOHN C. ALKIRE FINED ON TWO CHECK COUNTS

Two fines of $75 and costs each were imposed on John C. Alkire, 42, of Cincinnati, former Pickaway county, when he pleaded guilty in common pleas court Tuesday to indictments charging bad checks. He was sent to the county jail after failing to pay his fine.

Alkire was scheduled to go on trial in common pleas court Thursday morning. Jurors were notified not to report Thursday but to appear Monday for the trial of Emmitt Timmons, 19, of Route 1, charged with theft of 12 chickens from the poultry house of James Swearingen, Jackson township.

M. C. Seyfert, Jr., was appointed Tuesday by Judge J. W. Adkins as attorney for Jesse Bales, of Hamilton, indicted in March, 1934, on charges of robbery and auto stealing. Bales was brought here from the Mansfield reformatory. His trial has been set for Jan. 14.

PLEA FOR COURT TO BE LIBERAL MADE IN PERSON

New Interpretation of Acts Would Help "Common Good", President Says

ARMS SHIPMENTS HIT

Executive Sketches Objectives of Second "New Deal"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(UP)—There is no vital need for a constitutional amendment to legalize NRA, President Roosevelt informed congress today in a message asking authority to embargo munition shipments to Spain and calling on the judiciary for more liberal interpretation of the fundamental law.

He said the court are asked by the people to do their part in making democracy successful. Congratulating congress on its spirit of co-operation in emergencies with the executive, the president said, "We do not ask the courts to call non-existent powers into being but we have a right to expect that conceded powers or those legitimately implied shall be made effective instruments for the common good."

Does Not Name Court

The message did not name the U. S. Supreme Court where much of the New Deal's emergency and recovery legislation has been outlawed as unconstitutional by the inference of criticism was made.

The president sketched his objectives, proposed federal and state supplementary laws to help solve social and economic problems of a modern industrial democracy and challenged speculation, reckless over-production and monopolistic underproduction as creating wasteful net losses to society.

First move toward government re-organization will be made next week, Jan. 12, when the president submits to congress a program for re-organization and consolidation of government departments, bureaus and agencies.

Budgets To Come

Budget proposals and the re-organization plan are slated to jar congress to jangling dispute over. (Continued on Page Eight.)

MATTSON BOY'S MOTHER FEARED NEAR COLLAPSE

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 6.—(UP)—Mrs. William W. Mattson was reported near collapse today as kidnappers gave no indication they were ready to return her 10-year-old son, Charles, whom they abducted nine days ago.

She kept vigil with her husband, Dr. Mattson, beside the five special telephones in their home awaiting word from the bearded, swarthy man who left a worn and crumpled note demanding $25,000 for the youth's safe return.

Frantic from days of anxiety, the mother's nerves were reported near the breaking point and she was believed to have taken sedatives prescribed by her husband. Although confident that their son still lives, despite police belief that the kidnaper is a maniac, the distraught parents are alarmed over the boy's physical condition. They fear that nine days in the bitter cold of a northwest winter may have brought serious illness to the scantily clad boy.

FARM MEETINGS TO AIR DETAILS OF 1937 PROGRAM

Pickaway and Fayette County Projects to Bring Improvement to Much-Travelled Highway; Dayton Firm's Bid Low

Two major improvement projects, which will make Route 22 between Circleville and Washington C. H. a much better highway for the heavy travel which passes over it, are included in Ohio's federal aid program for 1937.

The first project includes 4.383 miles in Pickaway township between Williamsport and New Holland. When bids were opened by the highway department Tuesday it was found the low one was submitted by Boyd and Cook, Dayton, at $100,746. There were four bids for the work, which is expected to require more than three months' time.

SOVIET BUDGET INCLUDES CASH FOR NEW ARMS

MOSCOW, Jan. 6.—(UP)—The budget commission announced today that the 1937 Soviet budget will be approximately 93,000,000,000 roubles.

Last year's budget was 78,500,000,000 roubles. The increase was allotted largely to war industries and capital construction.

The 1936 war budget amounted to one-fifth of the total.

K. K. Abolin, assistant defense commissar, explained that greater expenditures are possible as a result of higher national income arising from the growth of productivity of labor.

It is difficult to estimate the amount of the Russian budget in exact terms of American dollars. Under the arbitrary value of about 20 cents placed by the Soviet on the Russian rouble, it would amount to $18,600,000,000.

PLANS TO ALTER OHIO COUNTIES FILED IN HOUSE

Consolidation of Welfare Departments Favored by Home Rule League

MANY ACTIVITIES LISTED

Three Plans Offered in Proposed Amendments

COLUMBUS, Jan. 6 (UP) — Four bills to change present procedure in Ohio's county governments were recommended to the general assembly today by the County Home Rule Association, following a state-wide conference here yesterday together with The Ohio League of Women Voters and the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

The bills call for the consolidation of all welfare activities into county welfare departments, the establishment of optional plans of county government, abolition of county coroners and substitution of medical examiners and the establishment of an optional program under which counties would have authority to establish centralized purchasing units.

Taft Names Committees

Committees to study possible improvements in the suggested bills and to sponsor them in the legislature will be appointed soon by Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, presiding officer of the conference.

As approved by the delegates, the county welfare bill aims to combine in a single department the principal relief, security and welfare activities in each county with the view of reducing duplication and effecting economy and efficiency. The bill was approved on the motion of George Chandler, secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Activities included in the proposed consolidation are: relief of needy in their homes, blind relief, soldiers' pensions and burial, aid for the aged, aid to needy children, child-placing, burial of the indigent, county homes, boards of county visitors and county work-houses, if any.

Inclusion of county hospitals and detention homes would be optional, it was said.

Although it was decided by the conference to study all proposed plans for reorganization of county forms of government, a bill which probably will be the nucleus of the final draft, was submitted to the group.

All Form Optional

It provides for three forms of organization, all of which are optional and subject to adoption by counties by popular vote. Each plan carries an elective board of county commissioners of from three to nine members having control of county policies and finances, and an executive responsible for supervising county administration. The three plans are:

1. Manager plan — county executive appointed by the board of commissioners and removed by the board. Executive to appoint all department heads.

2. Appointive executive plan — Executive appointed and removed by commissioners and department heads appointed by commissioners with executive's recommendations.

3. Elective executive plan — Executive elected by voters for a four year term. Appoints and removes department heads.

The program would practically eliminate elective county officers by empowering either the commissioners or the executive to appoint five department heads which would consolidate nearly all county activities.

Farm Bureau Sponsors $1,150 Essay Contest

Cash awards totaling $1150 will go to the winners of the 1937 Verna Elsing Memorial Essay-Oration contest, details of which were announced today by William G. Winemiller, of the educational department, Ohio Farm Bureau, Columbus.

Sponsored by the state and county farm bureaus of Ohio in memory of the farm bureau educational pioneer whose name it bears, the project requires the writing and delivery of an essay of 1,200 to 1,500 words on one of several suggested social and economic subjects, and provides the awards with the condition that they be used for additional scholastic activities.

Plans for the contest this year, just completed, restrict participation to high school seniors, and require entry registration before February 15. Eliminations this year will be held, first, in high school districts; second, by counties; and third, in each of five farm bureau field districts of the state. Winners in the five field districts will compete for the state championship at the annual Ohio State Fair in Columbus.

Bowsher Helps

Added impetus and significance have been given the project this year, according to Mr. Winemiller, by the enthusiastic endorsement of E. L. Bowsher, director of the state department of education; and through his cooperation, all county school superintendents are being supplied with full information regarding the competition.

W. E. Ellenswood, Ohio State Fair manager, and Bryan P. Sanders, Junior State Fair manager, have given assurance of their complete support of the project to make it a stellar event on the 1937 state fair program.

First prize in the state finals this year will be $400; second, $300; third, $200. Appropriate awards will also be made to the various district winners. Bibliographies will be supplied to entrants as soon as they have chosen their subjects, which must be selected from the following:

1. Safety on the Highways — Why and How?

2. What a Unified Program of Cooperative Action Can Mean to the Farmer of Ohio.

3. What Cooperation Holds for Youth.

4. Cooperation and World Peace.

Complete details of the contest may be secured by addressing the Educational Department, Ohio Farm Bureau, Farm Bureau Cooperative Building, 246 North High Street, Columbus.

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

CRAZY DRINKING IN CIRCLEVILLE

And now we have an admission from no less an authority than the "Circuiter" of the local paper, that there is entirely too much "crazy drinking in Circleville" followed with the criticism that Mayor Graham's failure to impose fines on the drunks, is largely responsible for the deplorable situation.

In Monday's issue of the paper, the Mayor takes up the cudgel in his own defense, arguing, substantially, that his alleged tolerance in his treatment of violators, is due to his sympathy with the families of offenders who are not only robbed of home support but are thrown upon relief at the further expense of the taxpayers; the drunken fathers, meantime, "languishing" in jail in warm beds, protected from the cold and with plenty to eat.

It must be admitted, that both the "Circuiter" and the Mayor are dealing frankly with the liquor traffic situation as it presents it.

A few years back radio took hold of four young Negro lads from Ohio and lifted them to international stardom. The youngsters started out with a mail order guitar and a sense of rhythm. Now the name of the Mills Brothers means a certain kind of music that can't be imitated.

This famous group comes back to the microphone for their first appearance in some months on the Speedshow on Saturday, January 9. Floyd Gibbons also presents Josephine Antoine, coloratura soprano star of the Metropolitan Opera, in this same broadcast over the Columbia net work at 9 p. m. EST.

Miss Antoine is another whom radio put in the star ranking. When she was a student at the Juillard School of Music in New York she sang over the radio a few times and was featured during a Sunday evening series of grand

Just the other day, the writer walked four or five blocks to his residence in Circleville behind two young women, both of them drunk and with locked arms, wobbling from one side of the pavement to the other in mutual efforts to hold each other up.

In my discussion of the shameful conditions as a result of the liquor traffic now prevalent throughout the nation, it must be admitted that in any honest attempt to punish violators for drunkenness, debauchery and crime, without adding to the want and destitution of wives and children, is a problem that confronts every enforcement official in the country at large, including those of Pickaway county. # WHY We Sell Water Heaters That Use Less Gas

"STRANGE," you will say, "for The Gas Company to sell water heaters that use less gas, when the Company should be interested in selling more gas." Yet, that is what we do, and by it we hope to sell more gas.

We must show our customers that gas performs its services in a modern manner and at less cost, if they are to be interested in using additional gas service.

There are thousands of old-fashioned gas water heaters on our lines today. The heaters demand frequent attention and often cannot be relied upon to deliver a good supply of hot water. Their inefficiency of operation cause them to use more gas — cause some customers to stint in their uses of hot water.

Install an automatic storage gas water heater in place of one of the out-moded heaters, and what happens? Plenty of hot water is now available at any hour of the day or night, without giving the heater any attention. For heating the same amount of water, less gas is used. Most families enjoy this saving by making greater use of hot water. Many of them become prospects for additional gas services, such as heating or refrigeration.

This question answered, we want to call your attention to our Annual Water Heater Sale, offering reduced prices on all models. The heater illustrated fits the requirements of most families — and look at the saving! Use our convenient terms to take advantage of these bargains in automatic storage water heaters, offered for a limited time only.

Three Dances to be Held in Gymnasium

An estimated budget for 1937 amounting to $106,109.58 was approved by the city Board of Education at its meeting Tuesday night in the high school building. Operating expenses listed under the budget amount to $94,640.17 of which $68,625 is salaries. Funds for bonds and interest were listed at $11,469.41. Clarence Barnhart, clerk of the board, reported the budget closely compared with 1936 receipts and expenses.

Contractors to Meet
Contractors who were successful bidders on the new addition to the high school and Corwin street buildings were unable to attend the meeting Tuesday night so an adjourned session will be held Wednesday at 5 p. m. in the law offices of Charles H. May, president of the board.

A request to the board, made by Supt. Frank Fischer, to provide a desk for Mrs. Brunelle Downing, art instructor, was handled so quickly members themselves were surprised. Mr. May said he had an extra roll-top desk at his office he no longer used and would give it to the school. The gift was accepted and arrangements made to move the desk.

Dance in Gymnasium
The Social committee of the high school was granted permission to hold school dances in the gymnasium. Three dances are still on the high school schedule, the Hi-Y dance, Junior-Senior banquet and the Social Council dance.

Purchase of some used show cases for use in biology classes and for school exhibits were discussed by the board but no definite action taken. The proprietor of a local store offered the cases to the board.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA
The motion picture version of Barry Benefield's best-selling novel, "Valiant Is The Word For Carrie," which opens at the Cliftona theatre Wednesday and Thursday, brings to the screen Gladys George, noted dramatic actress, supported by an elaborate cast.

Miss George has been a stage actress for many years but did not attract the attention of Hollywood until she made a new record in New York last year by appearing in 700 successive performances of "Personal Appearance." She is an actress of great charm and ability and big things are expected for her by Hollywood.

"Valiant Is The Word For Carrie" is the story of Carrie Snyder, a woman frowned upon by "respectable" residents of a small Louisiana town, and her friendship with a small boy. When the boy is forsaken by the world, she takes him, together with an orphan girl, and brings them up as her own. The years pass and Carrie becomes a highly successful operator of a dry-cleaning business. The children grow up and when it seems that all is ser-

"Scrooge," the motion-picture version of that immortal Charles Dickens story, "A Christmas Carol," now playing at the Circle theatre, is being shown both in America and England ninety-two years to the month after it was written. Dickens produced "A Christmas Carol" in December of 1843.

The film, which follows the original story scrupulously and employs the exact dialogue as set down by the author, features Seymour Hicks, one of England's most famous character actors, in the role of "Scrooge." Donnie Calthrop is cast as "Bob Cratchit," the hapless clerk in Scrooge's musty offices.

Board of Aid Does Big Job in Eight

COLUMBUS, Jan. 6. — In the comparatively short period of eight months during 1936 in which Ohio's Public Assistance program under the Social Security Act has been in effect, approximately 130,000 residents of the Buckeye state have benefited under provisions of the Act to an extent of $21,000,000.

These figures were disclosed by Judge Henry J. Robison, chief of the Ohio Division of Public Assistance, who ventured that the year 1937 would undoubtedly find the Social Security program in Ohio operating more extensively.

During the last year, the division of public assistance gave aid to about 98,000 aged persons, 26,000 dependent children, 3,500 blind persons, and 2,000 crippled children. In addition, child welfare services were inaugurated in three rural counties with an expansion of this program planned for the coming year.

Started April 27
On April 27, 1936 the division of public assistance first took formation with the appointment by Governor Martin L. Davey of Judge Robison, a former probate judge in Portage county. In the eight ensuing months, the program has expanded to such an extent that its benefits rendered during the short period of operation have accorded unfortunate Ohioans better living opportunities.

The largest phase of the public assistance program is the aid for the aged program. During the last year, 98,000 recipients received total grants of over $20,000,000. Of this amount, the federal government, in accordance with the Social Security Act, provided one-half of the funds.

Judge Robison pointed out that the old age assistance and old age benefits under the Social Security Act were not to be confused. Old age assistance is a co-operative plan by the state and federal governments in which both contribute equal shares in aiding aged persons in need. Old age benefits are strictly operated by the federal government and pertain to a retirement pension plan for American workers after they have attained the age of 65.

In turning to assistance rendered dependent children during 1936 under Ohio's Social Security program, figures disclosed that about 26,000 children, deprived of parental support but living in the homes of a responsible relative as specified by law, received total payments of $1,151,571 between July 1, 1936 and the end of the year.

Of this amount, the federal government contributed $367,886 while the state and county governments combined provided $783,835. In the program for dependent children, the federal government provides one-third of the total program cost while the state and counties provide the remainder.

Expense Divide

In the program for the blind, during the last six months of 1936, a total of $261,659 was spent for Ohio's 3,500 sightless receiving assistance under the Social Security Act. Of this amount, the federal government provided $130,804, the state contributed $43,610 and the counties expended $87,245. For this type of assistance, the federal government matches whatever funds the state plus counties spend.

About $275,000 has been spent during 1936 in caring for the state's 2,000 crippled children receiving aid under the Social Security Act. Hospitalization, examinations, and medical equipment were a few of the items for which funds were expended to care for the crippled children. The federal government has allocated $151,000 to Ohio for the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1937, for the care of crippled children.

"We have succeeded in ironing out many of the difficulties which usually beset a new program and in the coming year, we hope to make additional progress," Judge Robison said.

SEED CATALOG TIME

WHETHER the seed catalog is a superstition or a bad habit is a much disputed question and worthy of the consideration of the Wednesday Night Debating Club, but that it is as inevitable in January as New Year's Day is indubitable.

Next to a certain mail order house catalog and before the almanac it is the most read of the family shelf of free literature. It might be suggested that it is also the most popular picture book on the sitting room table.

What visions of giant corn stalks, balloon size cabbage, over-populated potato hills, tender lettuce, dazzling beautiful flowers and trim hedges are reared in the mind's eye of dad and mother when the new catalog from the seed company arrives. They pore through its leaves selecting the varieties they will plant in the backyard in the spring.

And the kids are not immune from this seed-mania. They fight for the new seed catalog and thumb through its pages in search of good things to eat and the plants and vegetables they will have in their gardens in the spring. With the seed catalogs the kiddies extend the planting, cultivating and harvesting over all 12 months of the year with the best results attained when the garden patches of the grown-up folks are lying idle.

The erroneous impression that spring fever is first contracted in the spring from the early buds or the twitter of the north-bound birdlife is corrected every January when the mail man delivers the first seed catalog, with its appetizing picture of fresh garden vegetables, early flowers, corn on the cob, red luscious strawberries, mellow canteloupe, and ripening fruit. The mail order and seed houses know their business as well as man's failings.

COST OF RECKLESSNESS

THERE are two ways to look at the survey disclosing that American hospitals annually treat 10,000,000 sick and injured persons and for the care of these there are 900,000 hospital beds and a vast army of doctors, surgeons, nurses, students and attendants.

One can see in them the staggering economic loss they represent, terrible suffering and great sorrow, and the price people pay for carelessness and neglect. It is a depressing panorama of waste, suffering, recklessness, indifference and ignorance which shakes respect for humanity.

But there is another and more inspiring prospective. It translates these statistics into self-sacrifice, social service, humanitarianism, charity and philanthropy. It sees only the costly and efficient hospitals the generosity of individuals and society has

IL DUCE TAKES IT EASY

ROME—The Iron Man of Italy these days is leading a more contemplative, philosophical life.

Mussolini can still turn on the old theatricals, still twist the lion's tail and make the eagle scream, still can put on an exhibition of play-acting seen nowhere else in the world. While inspecting a government-built tenement for workers, he runs up the scaffolding, swings down a ladder like an ape, slaps a workman on the back, puts his arm around another. . . .

It is grand stuff! But he doesn't do it quite so much any more.

Il Duce is now 53—which he hates to confess. In these more mature years he is going in for readings and studying. In his younger days he read voraciously—Marx, Nietzsche, Sorel, all the Radical authors.

Today he still reads them, plus everything he lays his hands on, including press clippings about himself. He works only five to seven hours a day, spends the remainder reading and exercising.

There was a time when Il Duce saw a steady stream of visitors. Almost every newspaperman who came to town got an audience. Now his visitors are rarer.

His executive work, for the most part, is done through memoranda. Like Roosevelt, Il Duce demands that all memos be reduced to one page of writing, at the most two. He deals with them abruptly, writes "Yes," "No" at the bottom, sometimes scribbles suggestions. He works with tremendous rapidity, covers a great amount of work in a day. Also he reads and writes with great rapidity.

IL DUCE'S SHOES

Mussolini's partial retirement from the firing line has come because, at last, he wants to train others to fill his shoes. He wants Fascism to continue.

Getting real substitutes for Il Duce is a tough job. Even his son-in-law, Count Ciano, now Number Two Man in Italy, is a long way from being equal to the old man.

Mussolini has been a great believer in youth. Now he finds himself surrounded by nothing but youth. And they are very callow youths, some being little squirts whose chief pastime, while attached to the Italian Embassy in Washington, was to get embroiled in motor accidents.

Now, at a time when the dictator finally has decided to give the others some rope, let them develop responsibility, they can't take it.

provided for the care of the sick and injured; the genius and labors of the surgeons and doctors who mend and cure 10,000,000 broken human bodies each year, and the service to their fellowmen of the thousands of nurses working in these institutions.

It is a disturbing thing that so many people need hospitalization in a country where the science of medicine, public health and sanitation, and disease prevention are in such a high state of development, but it is equally reassuring to know that none is denied hospital care.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up once more ahead of the sun, but that state of affairs will not be for long, for Sol rises two minutes earlier each day and my time varies little and that little seldom if ever on the earlier side. Found nothing startling in the morning paper headlines, so turned to coffee and soon away to the post. Received a Chamber of Commerce directors' ballot that put me in a quandary for most of the day due to difficulty of selecting only seven from among the names of Ed Wallace, Reed Shafer, Bob Brehmer, Mack Parrett, Tom Gilliland, Harry Steinhauser, Frank Lynch, Jim Smith, Joe Burns, Nate Groban, Karl Herrmann, Irv Kinsey and Ray Rowland. Any choice in that group would grace any directorate.

First of the day's callers was Arthur Phillips, anxiously seeking information regarding a lost pet terrier and fearful that the dog reported by the scrivener as being killed in North Court street was his. Put his mind at ease, for the unfortunate animal was an airdale. Art's dog is an old one, long in the family and most highly regarded, so information regarding him would be joyfully received.

Here comes Mrs. J. Wall, long a power among Republican women in Ohio, and most complimentary about "the nice things the scrivener has said off and on about the ville." Gave assurance that the penning was sincere and would continue to be so. Greeted Pearl Greeneo come from Stoutsville to open a local farm implement store. A valuable addition to the city's business family. Pleased by calls of the Rev. L. C. Sherburne, Richard Hess and Howard Irwin, director of soldier relief. Saw Harry Riffle, the dog catcher, and pleased to note that his wire cage was empty.

Pondered briefly over a remark made Monday evening at a banquet in Columbus by Paul Harris, founder of Rotary. According to him there exists a bird called the "woofenpfoofle," a bird that flies backward because it cares not where it is going, being interested only in where it had been. Recalled that in a medium long and somewhat varied life I have met a few "woofenpfoofles" and they were not birds, either.

Met and talked with G. L. Zurnehly, farmer of the Clarksburg district, learning that he is a close relative of Elzea Zurnehly, a good friend of U. Lima way. Chatted with Bill Radcliff, learning that he has affairs of state in Williamsport well in hand. Verified later by Fred Tipton, who now is fully recovered from a severe illness. Wish I had Bill's all's-well-with-the-world smile and practically constant sense of humor.

See by the paper that Circleville's postoffice joined in the business increase during the year just closed, a pleasing fact, and that the Chamber of Commerce is out after more industry. Personally, have lived in too many industrial centers, seeing what can and does happen to them in hard times, and therefore not overly excited about new factories unless they be of certain very solid type. Much safer to pin hopes on agriculture and the up-building of an outstandingly fine residential ville. But if the master minds of the C. of C. wish industry the scrivener will aid the move, for he has been wrong before and may be this time.

Geographic Names Given to Unknown Regions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE POETIC-MINDED anatomists have given geographical names to many parts and regions of the body. There are canals, such as the

And Turkish saddles, and anvils and stirrups, and hammers all in your own body. The anatomists struck things every once in a while that they couldn't think up any name for, so they called them inanimate. There is an inanimate artery and an inanimate bone. There is not the slightest reason why they shouldn't have named them something. But there is one structure they did name, the carotid body, which they might have named the inanimate body or the terra incognita, because no one knows what it does or whether it is important to bodily economy or no.

Structure Is Glandular
In appearance it is much like those small masses of tissue which we have been discussing this week as so essential to life. It is glandular in structure, and has a rich nerve supply which also extends over the carotid artery on which it rests. It sits in the neck, just on that portion of the large blood

CHAPTER 42
REID tiptoed along the length of the room, and followed Sylvia silently through the panel, which closed with a spring behind them. They went along a short passage and up a flight of steps, at the top of which was a flimsy door. Within was a small comfortable room. On one side was the back of the organ, and on the opposite a tiny pointed window, covered closely with a curtain. Cases of music were neatly arranged in a cabinet, and there was a table and two chairs. In one corner was the old seat and wooden lever where the man who worked the bellows had sat before electric power had been installed. A curtain divided the room from the organ loft in the chapel itself.

Two camp beds had been installed by James, and in one the twins were lying asleep, their hair mixed on the pillow. Somehow, a picture Reid had once seen of the Princes in the Tower floated to his mind, and he shuddered. Sylvia was fully dressed, and announced that she was going to sit up and watch.

"You lie down, Sylvia. I shall be all right here," she whispered back. "You are a sick man and need rest."

They compromised by Reid taking the first "watch" while Sylvia lay down. He switched off the light, but a night light was burning for the children which gave a faint glow sufficient for Reid to see the face of the sleeping girl.

He was content to watch her, happy in the moment, but with a quiet, uneasy feeling that the future might hold. As long as his help was needed, and he could be of service, he could stay on, but if the problem was cleared up and the murderer found there would be no excuse.

He may have dozed off into a fitful half-sleep. His nerves suddenly warned him before his senses became active. A slight, very slight, noise like the scraping of wood came out of the dark. Instantly he was wide awake and straining to hear the direction of the sound.

It came again, and like a flash he knew that the sound came from the other side of the organ. Very quietly he crept to the curtain, his former training standing him in good stead. He was unarmed, but that did not cause him a moment's pause.

He stood in the organ loft, and below him was the chapel, in pitch darkness. For a moment he imagined that his ears had tricked him, or that some mouse had made the noise. Then it came again close to him, and he put out his hands to the edge of the embrasure, and nearly cried out. Two projections met his fingers, knobs of leather that moved, and in a moment he understood their dread meaning—they were the ends of a ladder placed against the organ loft, and someone was climbing the ladder. He seized the end and, exerting all his strength, hurled them back into the chapel. There was a crash, and a yell from below, and then the darkness split with a red flash, and a bullet sang past him and smashed into the organ.

He heard a cry from Sylvia, and then a sound he had heard before, and which was stamped deeply into his mind, the metallic clang of the brass plate that covered the crypt falling into its place.

Sylvia stood beside him, her trembling hands holding him tightly.

"Are you hurt?" she cried in an agony of terror.

"No, he missed me. But the children . . ."

They hurried back into the room where the twins had got out of their bed and were gazing wildly and half awake as Reid turned on the light. They ran to Sylvia, who held them both close to her, while Reid pulled the curtain back, all listening in tense silence. And then, from somewhere below, there came a half human yell, drawn out, as of a man in agony, and the sound of hurrying feet.

"We had better wait here," Reid said calmly. "I think the danger is past."

"What is it?" Sylvia whispered, her eyes staring into the darkness of the chapel.

"I think there must have been

"Are you hurt?"

some burglar in the chapel trying to steal the cross," he said lightly, with a meaning glance at the girl.

"Did you shoot him, Uncle Jack?" Marian asked, her excitement getting the better of her fears.

He laughed, and took the child on his knee. "No, I am afraid I missed him."

The children refused to go to bed, and Sylvia covered them with blankets. They sat down to play cards.

Selden heard the noise from his post in the corridor where he was waiting in the dark, and his face set grimly. He ran towards the chapel, and a man almost fainting with fright fell on him, clawing insanely at his coat.

"Oh, Mr. Selden! For heaven's sake!"

Selden pushed the huge form of Hucks from him roughly.

"Full yourself together, man—what's the matter?"

"I don't fear men," Hucks whimpered, "it's down there, sir, in the crypt—Sir Henry that was—and it ran after me—straight, sir. I'm not imagining it."

"Be a man—where were you?"

"Going round the house, sir, as I was told. I knew the chapel door was locked, because James told me. I had got as far as that when I heard a shot fired from inside and then I saw it coming up from the crypt as plain as I see you. It had a sort of bluish flame round it—it was Sir Henry. I turned and ran."

He spoke in little jerks and clung to Selden as though for protection. James came hurrying along the corridor from his quarters, and stood by them while Hucks repeated his statement.

"Come with me," Selden said firmly, and drew an automatic from his pocket.

"Not me, sir—I'll wait here. I'm not going to face it again."

"Come, James," Selden snapped. "Leave that cur where he is."

They went slowly to the bend of the corridor and turned the corner. James swallowed hard with a clicking sound, and the hand he placed on Selden's shoulder quivered, but he went on stoutly.

"What is the meaning of this?" he whispered feebly.

"That I'm going to find out," Selden said between his teeth.

The ante-chamber was empty and chill, and the forbidding steps showed no sign of the grisly thing that had frightened Hucks. Selden descended without pausing and turned on the light, raising his automatic at the same time. There was no one there. They crept towards the iron gateway, and James clutched Selden's arm convulsively. "Oh, Lord—look!" he cried with a shaking finger.

New Officers of D.U.V. Installed Tuesday Eve

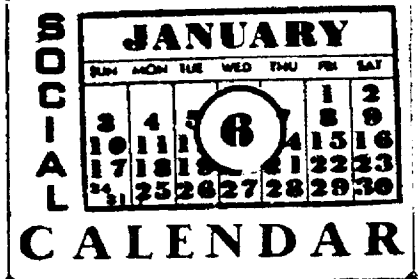

Gifts Presented to Retiring President of Organization

The regular meeting of the Daughters of Union Veterans was held in the Post room, Memorial Hall, Tuesday evening. After the business meeting was held, the newly elected officers were installed. Mrs. Nellie Stoffer served as installing officer, assisted by Miss Emily Yates, installing guide. FRANK FOR HIS POST BEFORE BOARD

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 6.—(UP)—Charges that Glenn Frank, famed liberal educator, mismanaged his job as president of the University of Wisconsin, were given a public "airing" today at an ouster trial before the university's governing board of regents. Backers of the ouster movement claimed at least eight of the board's 15 votes. They charged that Frank mismanaged university finances, failed to retain the confidence of the university staff, lacked essential administrative qualities, devoted much of his time to his personal income and permitted "questionable" expenditures of public money. Regents disclaimed political animosities in the ouster movement, denied it resulted from Frank's frequent tiffs with Gov. Philip F. LaFollette, who has been boomed as a third party presidential candidate and was inaugurated for his third term this week.

GER CAGERS PRY LID OFF HOME CAGE SEASON AGAINST BEXLEY LIONS

QUINTET DRILLS HARD AND LONG FOR FRIDAY TILT

Davis Ruled Ineligible Because of Grades, Cutting Strength

THORNTON TO REFEREE

First Contest of Evening Features Underclasses

Circleville high school cagers are drilling hard and long this week in an effort to reach top form for the opening of the Central Buckeye league race Friday evening. Bexley will invade Circleville, the game being scheduled for the Circleville Athletic Club gym. It will be the first home appearance of the team.

Bexley, headed by Hogan, also a football end, is fast and will test the Red and Black.

The Tiger reserve strength took a kick in the trousers this week when it was learned Junior Davis, promising freshman, is down in his grades and will not be eligible in time for Friday's fray.

Friday evening's festivities begin at 6:30 when the Tiger Cubs play the leading team in the eighth grade league. The reserve teams of Bexley and Circleville will meet an hour later.

Marty Thornton, of Denison U., one of central Ohio's best whistle-blowers, will officiate the varsity contest.

Saturday evening the Red and Black crew goes to Ashville to meet Al Kauber's fast team.

Dean and Owen May Form Star Battery

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(UP)—Reputed to be worth a fabulous sum, the combination of Dizzy Dean, ace pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Mickey Owen, 19-year-old rookie catcher from Columbus, may become the year's prize battery.

Dean, whose records show to be one of the two top-ranking major league hurlers, survived the barrage of rumors and trades during the past major league meetings where an enormous price was asked for the more eccentric of baseball's most famous pitching brothers. The deal most consistently proffered was $150,000 and three well-known players. To date it has not been consummated and Dean seems to be set with the Cardinals for the coming campaign.

Lacks Only Experience
Owen, who is slated to be one of the regular backstops on the receiving end of Dizzy's slants, was brought up by the Cardinals from their Columbus farm. He is young, rangy, fast and despite scant experience, was a consistent batter in his last season in the minors. He led the league several times.

Owen is a cousin of the Detroit Tigers' third baseman and has already drawn two bids of more than $100,000 from major league clubs. Branch Rickey has turned down all offers, which seems to indicate that the rookie backstop is scheduled to hold down a definite spot in the Cardinal lineup.

Pitching Staffs Strouger
With last year's friction between Dean and catcher Virgil Davis smoothed out by the trading of the latter, the pitching staff considerably strengthened by the acquisition of Lon Warneke and Paul Dean determined to make a comeback to his 1935 effectiveness, the Cardinals look like the team to beat for the National League pennant.

But the volatile Dizzy has already gone on record as saying he would be the outstanding hold-out of the 1937 season.

Further significance is attached to Dizzy's rebelliousness when it is remembered that without the elder Dean around, it is doubtful if Daffy's comeback attempts would attain any signal success.

OLSEN FOR NO JUMP AT CENTER

COLUMBUS, Jan. 6.—(UP)—A forecast the center jump will be eliminated by delegates at the next meeting of the National Basketball coaches Association and unqualified approval of the game without it, was given here today by Ohio State's veteran court mentor, Harold G. Olsen.

Olsen, just back from a holiday tour of the west where his quintet played four contests under the rules in vogue in the southern half of the Pacific Coast Conference, was enthusiastic about the game without the center jump.

"I think the elimination of the center jump is one of the most advanced steps taken to better the game in a number of years," Olsen said. "This is the third season teams in the lower half of the Pacific conference have played without it and our games against these teams demonstrated clearly the benefits to be attained under the plan."

INDIANA COACH SEES WILD YEAR IN CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(UP)—Take the word of a champion, a record of eight victories and four defeats may win the Big Ten basketball champion this winter after one of the dizziest campaigns in history.

Everett Dean, coach of Indiana's defending co-champions, predicted today the team on top at the end of the season would be bumped around like no other champion in recent years.

"There are too many tough teams in the league this season," said Dean. "Indiana is good, but with the bunch we must face, we will have trouble remaining in the first division."

"I believe the championship team will finish with a record of either nine and three or eight and four."

OHIO U. TAKES PLACE AT TOP WITH 39-34 WIN

Cincinnati Defeated by Bobcats; Marshall Five Turns Back Dayton

COLUMBUS, Jan. 6.—(UP)—A top-heavy pre-season choice for the crown and an outstanding "dark horse" threat today stood top the Buckeye conference after the opening skirmishes of the league's basketball race were recorded.

Ohio University, whose sophomore quintet finished last season's campaign in whirlwind fashion and established itself as the prime choice for the 1936-37 title far in advance, swept to a 39 to 34 triumph over the University of Cincinnati in its initial conference contest.

Marshall college, which prepared itself for the Buckeye race with a lengthy tour through the east during the holidays, showed great form as it gained an easy 51 to 25 triumph over the University of Dayton. The triumph demonstrated the Herd would have to be reckoned with in the title dispute.

A fifth Buckeye team saw action when Miami went outside the conference and suffered a 31 to 26 setback at the hands of Earlham of Richmond, Ind.

Mount Union, annually a power in the Ohio conference, launched its league schedule with a 28 to 20 triumph over Wittenberg.

In the only other game last night, a powerful Duquesne team prevented Wooster from sweeping its eastern schedule. After victories over Rider and Lehigh, the Scots were beaten 51 to 37 at Pittsburgh.

Four contests involving Ohio teams are scheduled tonight. The feature pits Ohio Wesleyan against a formidable University of Toledo five at Toledo.

In the other games, Western Reserve faces its city rival, John Carroll, at Cleveland; Akron opposes Kent State at Kent; and Wilberforce engages Wilmington at Wilmington.

FRANCIS RATED BEST FOOTBALL STAR BY FOES

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—(UP)—Big Sam Francis, Nebraska's versatile fullback, was named today by football players from 94 colleges as the greatest player ever to receive the Douglas Fairbanks trophy as the most valuable man of the 1936 season.

The men who played against him ranked big Sam above such men as Louisiana State's great end, Gaynell Tinsley; Clarence (Ace) Parker, Duke's quarterback; Ed Widseth, Minnesota tackle, and Ray Buivid, Marquette's star halfback.

Tinsley ranked second with a percentage ranking of 96.01. Parker, Widseth and Buivid all were rated above 95 per cent.

KING LEVINSKY LOSES CONTEST TO ROSENBLUM

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(UP)—Max Rosenbloom, former light heavyweight champion, today looked to a promised match here in the spring against Joe Louis after a decision last night over King Levinsky, Chicago's lumbering fish peddler.

Rosenbloom weighed 190. Levinsky 202.

Levinsky went down for the count of eight in the fourth round. He tried a comeback in the last round in a surprise burst of energy that left Rosenbloom bleeding for the bell.

Referee Jack Kennedy gave Rosenbloom five rounds, Levinsky two and three were even.

CARMEL, Cal. (UP)—Carmel, America's leading literary and art colony, just doesn't want to grow up. It is argued they destroy the picturesque beauty of the village.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK by R. J. SCOTT

CONTRACT BRIDGE

DEFENDERS' LONE CHANCE

THE GREAT majority of published hands show interesting methods whereby declarer has fulfilled a difficult contract, or where he has taken a small loss in preference to allowing opponents to score game or slam. There are comparatively few hands where a brilliant defensive play affords sufficient material for an interesting write-up. Today, however, we have a case where West missed a fine chance to defeat a contract, had he taken "defenders' only chance".

Let West take his two defensive tricks in hearts. Then have him lead a third round of hearts, on the possibility that East may hold the J-8, back of dummy's 10-7, so that either ruff possible for dummy to make will be overruled by East. The overruff by East will force declarer to win the third trick with the K of clubs. The final result of this ruff and overruff will be to give West a defensive trick with his 9 of clubs, on the third lead of trumps, or else to give East a trick, in case declarer does not lead his other high trump at once.

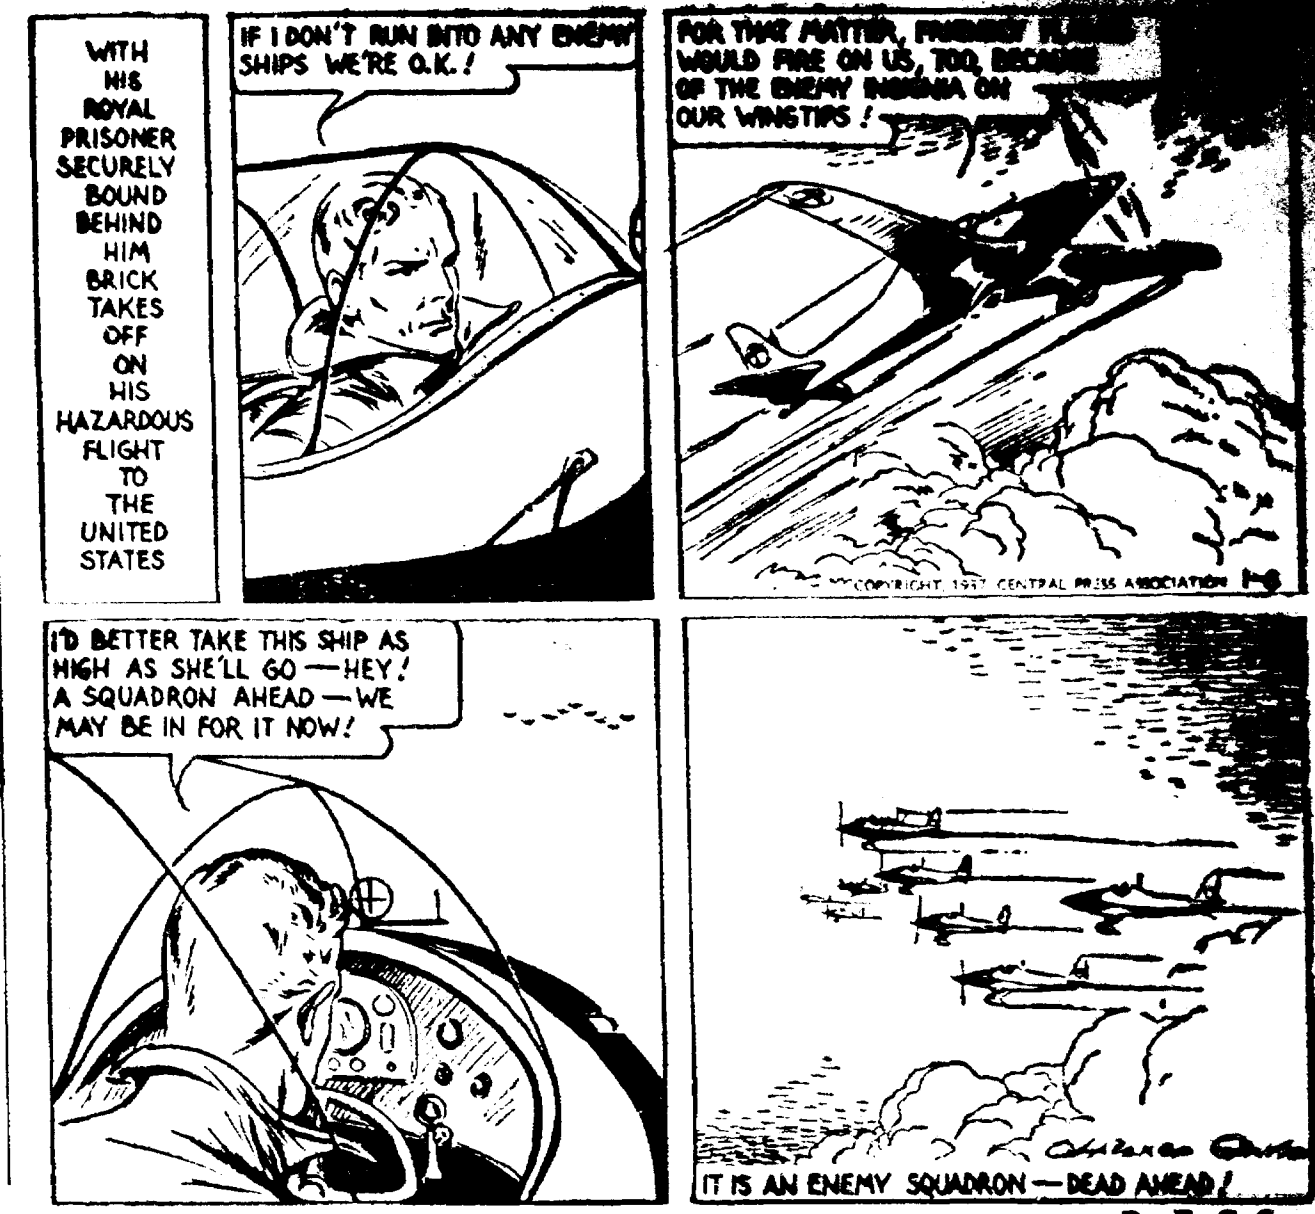

If dummy ruffs with its 7, East's 8 must win the trick unless declarer wins with one of his high trump honors. If dummy ruffs with the 10, East's J will oblige declarer to overruff with a high honor. In either case the single high trump honor held by declarer cannot pick up East's club out-rank the trump left in dummy, and also pick up West's guarded 9 of clubs. West missed a really brilliant defensive play, by failing to lead a third round of hearts.

Bidding went: South, 2-Clubs; West, 4-Hearts, preventing opponents from discovering an easy game at spades; South, 5-Clubs. West took two defensive tricks in hearts, as his partner had echoed with the J and 2. West thought that the lone chance to defeat the contract was in the event of East being able to win a spade trick, so he led the 9, which declarer's K took. Three leads of winning trumps then enabled South to spread his cards for an obvious 5-odd. There was no offensive play to the cards held.
